BUILDING BLOCKS

Jesus tells us in today's Gospel that, "many are called but few are chosen." Jesus knows that human beings have an innate desire to belong and to be chosen. We have a desire to be a part of a group of like-minded individuals who serve a purpose larger than our own personal needs as a collective body. That's what church is! It's a place where all baptized believers are chosen by Christ to work together to advance kingdom values and priorities. It's a place where we get to know one another's strengths and supply for one another's weaknesses in order to proclaim the Good News of Salvation to people wherever they may be using the means of communication with which we've been blessed.

However, just because we are chosen doesn't mean that we always accept God's invitation to service. We see that in our gospel for today in Jesus' story about the wedding banquet. The wedding garments would have been given to the invited guests to wear at the banquet, and so, it would have been quite arrogant for a guest to refuse to wear such garments. It would have indicated an unwillingness to participate in the wedding festivities or that their own clothes were superior in quality or appearance to those of the other invited guests.

The wedding garments thus symbolize the righteousness necessary to enter the Kingdom of God. And all of us share in the same righteousness by grace. Christ provides us HIS righteousness to make up for our lack of righteousness, through his suffering and death on the cross. However, we must CHOOSE to 'put on' (accept) Christ's righteousness and thus be saved. It's an open invitation for all to come to the wedding feast of the Lamb, but each person must choose to accept that invitation and to accept Christ's redemption. On this thanksgiving weekend, it is also our opportunity for us to give thanks for God's great gift of salvation and the many blessings that have flowed from it and into our lives.

DID YOU KNOW?

Someone asked to explain Exodus 4:24

Exodus 4:24 reads, "At a lodging place on the way, the LORD met him (Moses) and sought to put him to death." The passage does not explicitly say that the Lord kills Moses. Rather, God threatens someone—probably Moses—until Zipporah (Moses' wife) circumcises her son, touches him with the foreskin, and says, "Surely you are a bridegroom of blood to me." The danger then passes.

The most common explanation is:

- Circumcision was the sign of God's covenant with Abraham (Genesis 17:9-14). An uncircumcised male was considered to have broken the covenant.
- Moses was being sent to represent the covenant God and confront Pharaoh, yet he had apparently neglected to circumcise one of his own sons.
- Moses himself was not exempt from obedience. Before judging Egypt for resisting God, he had to put his own household in covenant order.
- Zipporah recognizes the problem and performs the circumcision, which averts the threatened death.

The episode may also deliberately anticipate the Passover. Just as blood later protects Israel's firstborn from death, the blood of circumcision protects Moses or his son here. This is especially relevant because, immediately before the incident, God tells Moses that Israel is his "firstborn son" and warns that Pharaoh's firstborn will die.

The main point is fairly clear: the deliverer of Israel must first submit to the covenant himself, and covenant disobedience is treated with deadly seriousness

DIOCESAN NEWS

Do you believe in the dignity of the human person? For Development and Peace — Caritas Canada, this Catholic social teaching principle is at the heart of our work. With the support of the government and generous donors, we carry out transformative programs and projects in more than 30 countries around the world.

This aid is invaluable—and even lifesaving—for many impoverished communities. It can help save children's lives in Somalia through treatments for malnutrition and promote gender equality and women's civic participation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

We need your support to make this possible. Join the movement today! To learn more: devp.org/campaign.
